BENNETT GREENSPAN

Greenspan founded Family Tree DNA in 2000 to explore the field of genetic genealogy. He will speak on discovering Jewish history through DNA testing and address the issues of overlap between Jewish DNA in Ashkenazi, Mizrahi and Sephardic populations. Through his work many “non-Jews” have discovered their Jewish ancestry.

Houston based Family Tree DNA is the largest non-medical DNA testing company in the world. Greenspan has spent years investigating his maternal grandfather’s family, an interest that led to his founding of this company.

DR. STEPHEN P. MORSE

Morse is the creator of the One-Step Website, which offers more than 200 tools for family history research. His work has been honored with awards for lifetime achievement and outstanding contributions from organizations ranging from the Association of Professional Genealogists and National Genealogical Society to the International Association of Jewish Genealogical Society. Dr. Morse has authored a number of books and played a major role in computer development.
